Quincy Valley Medical Center Now Providing the Latest in Bone Health Assessment

QUINCY, WA, June 28, 2010 – The Quincy Valley Medical Center has expanded its health and wellness services available to men and women with the addition of the Discover™ QDR bone densitometry system from Hologic. Beginning Tuesday, June 29th, Quincy Valley Medical Center will be performing Bone Density tests in its facility.

The imaging technology of the Discovery provides superb image quality incorporating computer-aided fracture assessment, to quantify and display the degree of vertebral compression, the best diagnostic tool to support early detection and treatment of osteoporosis. Discovery is the single platform to support a broad spectrum of patients over a lifetime of care. Discovery enables new dimension in care, including greater insights into biomechanical strength, lumbar spine and proximal femur studies, BMD measurements of the entire skeleton, and many other clinical applications.

Quincy Valley Medical Center provides a comprehensive scope of services addressing the physical, emotional and educational needs of our clients. Each and every patient receives personalized care designed to meet his/her individual needs. Our staff is highly trained and our equipment is state-of-the-art. We are committed to providing compassionate, quality care to the people in our community.

Quincy Valley Medical Center is a health care organization with the primary mission of offering high quality, acute health care and preventative medical care in a caring and compassionate manner to all people who live in, work in or visit Quincy and its surrounding areas. For further information, please call Veronica Cruz, Radiology Department Manager at 509-787-5371.
